

Executive biography

Elizabeth Henson

CIO

WaitTime

Involved since the inception of WaitTime, Elizabeth has played a critical role in defining WaitTime's strategy, design, and product roadmap by leveraging global partner relationships, innovating with clients, and guiding the internal team. As the CIO for WaitTime, she specializes in the integration of our technology across multiple user interfaces including signage, mobile applications, and analytics.

Her background in building architecture and design has helped pioneer a critical spatial perspective on connecting WaitTime data to creatively communicate information to building operators and guests to generate actionable platforms and informed business strategies. She collaborates directly with WaitTime clients across multiple platforms including app development, venue operations efficiency, guest experience, and data/analytics.
