

Executive biography

Matt Grubis

Chief Engineer, Monitoring Solutions

GE HealthCare

Recognized as the technical expert and thought leader inside and outside of GE, leading the technical vision of the patient monitoring organization, accountable for the product and system design quality.

Driving product architecture based on a deep understanding of the Patient/Customer needs. Leading global technology and innovation strategies, driving continuous improvements in engineering processes to support quality, productivity and predictability.

Developing the engineering culture through mentoring, influencing, communicating across the organization leveraging town halls, social media, roundtables and 1 on 1s. Working directly with customers, business leadership, key technology supplies and global research teams. Regularly speaking at conferences, participating on standards development, interfacing with regulatory bodies and providing interviews with external media. Supporting business development activities.